Membership, a main source of income, has declined from 5,400 to about 5,200 since Mr Loney's appointment; it had increased threefold nver the orevious six years. The Rowntree Social Ser-vice Trust, which had provided important financial support for several years, has reduced its contributions.

Most of the trust's grant of £10,500 for this year had been committed before Mr Loney'a appointment. For next year only 16,000 is earmarked for the NCCL; it will be reduced to $2,000 in 1976 and 1977.

Mr P. Chitnis, the trust's secre-tary, denied yosterday that Mr Loney's appointment had any-thing to do with the docision to taper off grants to the council. The trust did not give money to organizations in perpetuity. It provided money for particular projocts, in order to get them established, he said.

It had beeo suggested that Mr Loney's admission that he is a democratic socialist and a mili-tant had affected the trust's the National Union of Students judgmeot. That was oot true, Mr Chimis said. Education Correspondent The fanaticism of some students who refused to listen to unpelatable points of view was denounced yesterday as the greatest single threat to education by Mrs Williams, Secretary of State for Prices and Consumer Protection

Mrs Williams, who was minister of state with responsibility for higher education in the previons Labour government, said she would not speak to any stu-dent body until they were will-ing to hear, alternative views expressed.

Sho joins a growing list up ministers who have registered their nhjectinn to the decision of the National Union of Stu-dents not to allow "fascist" or "racist" speakers to address nniversity audiences. The deci-sion, taken in April, is to he debated again by union delegates at a special conference next Saturday.

Mrs Williams told the cantenary conference of the Asso-ciation of Head Mistresses in London: "Tho greatest single threat to education is not the theories of one political sido or the other, hut a strange recru-descence of a crude faith-finaticism which says it does not wish to listen to beilefs it does not want to hear. not want to hear. people for their idealism, and their rejection of hypocrisy, Mrs Williams was speaking of the others who were inspired by a faith of a "stranger kind".

Student fanaticism 'a threat to education'

It wes based on e rebirth of simple dogmas and superstitions, she said. It could be seen in the schools, in the spread of interest in the occult and the simplest forms of evangelism, similar to those of the seven-taenth and eighteenth centuries. The movements of the left were hased on a secular faith groping for certainty in an ago of uncer-tainty and for some way of guidance by which to live. Earlier Miss Jean Wilks, that association's president, was applauded when sha said the association could not give even tacit epprovel to teacher mili-tancy in support of hetter salarias.

She said: "Many of us know from the position in our own schools that children are suffering, and serionsly, from the ac-tions of some toachers in striving for better pay and conditions. We do not think these methods aro right, nor do we think they are ultimately effective."

she hed heen charged with "aoti-state human trafficking", an offence which carries a maximum 15-year jail senteoce, and with assisting an escape attempt

Miss Ballantine bed heen living in West Berlin for several months but was well acquainted with East Germany through holidays at youth camps.

She was arrested at the border crossing point between West Berlin and East Germany on her way to spend the Whitson weekend in West Germany. earlier, Several weeks apparently on the day ber friend's escape attempt failed, she had ben detained at the bor-der for several hours before heing given a free passage back to West Berlin.

Ballantine's lawyer Miss received advice from across the Berlin wall today that East Germany's leading defence lawyer, Herr Wolfgang Vogel, will be bandling her case and that of ber friend, whose club is in the netional first division and reached the European Cup Win-ners' Cup semi-final round two seasons ago.

The East Germans treat as a an activity that has drained in the West some of the best brains, especially doctors.

But the targets of the East German authorities are chiefly the professional escape organizations in the West which charge up to DM40,000 (about £5,600) a bead for their services.

Tha arrest and sentencing of offenders from these organiza-tions, usually from among drivers and couriers are datifully recorded by the official East German press. But the private cases are not men-

Broadcasting Saturday

If the funny Thick as Thieves stole a march on you last week there is still time to join the gang watching it (ITV 8.30). The Thriller series too has started well (ITV 9.0). Historical drama from France continues (BBC2 10.5). Everest 1924 gets an anniversary repeat (BBC2 9.15).—L.B.

War Stories

As I look out of my window, wonder, would it have intered to it seems that the June weather discover that the mighty water is celebrating this anniversary tower on Campden Hill has of D-Day by repeating the pro- been pulled down and replaced eramme it put out 30 years by a block of flats distinguish

Old and new. Don't miss the raw, strong socio-drama of life in the high-rise flats (ITV 10.15). But Pinero's The Magistrate is a repeated wow (BBC1 8.1 Personalities-for choice are The Joy Folk (BBC1 6.15), a global birdman (BBC2 8.10) and the cowboy big-city 'tec McCloud (ITV 7.55).—L.B.

So too are fochsias and some that are especially useful as they hang down gracefully are Cascade, white and red, Falling Stars, red, Golden Marinka, with golden foliage and red flowers and Swingtime, red and white. As I mentionad above the pen-dulous varieties of lohelia, are have green plastic coated wire baskets which last much longer. We also have "half baskets" a We also have "half baskets" a semi-circular container and all you have to do is to drive a couple of hooks or nails into the wall or ience and hang the flat side of the container against it. The circular haskets of course need to he suspended from a bracket, usually of wrought iron, to keep them clear of the wall. The old wire basket one used dulous varieties of lohelia, are excellent. Tha zehrinas and tra-descantias that we grow as The old wire basket one used to line with sphagnum moss m stop the soil from washing out, when you could find it. One can still do this with the plastic covered wire baskets and if you have access to a supply of sphagnum moss it looks very nice. But, it is a simpler matter to line the basket with thin plastic checting-another use house plants can do a stint outside in a basket and probahly quite enjoy it and there are various double and single perunias which may be used. enjoy themselves playing chess. Their conduct is all the more admirable in that they neither expect to get, nor do they in fact ever receive, any expressed gratituda for thair work. Looking back on a long and activa career as a chass-player I cannot remember ever having told a cliess organizer that I appreciated all the work he had done for me. Nor do I regard myself as having heen exceptionally selfish in this respect; selfish mayhe, hut then all chess-players are selfish. It is an odd paradox that idealism in tha cause of chess results in a sort of ruthless concentration on the game that admits no second thought or consideration of the afforts of the disinterested. What makes the organizer pursue his unrewarding task ? It cannot be financial reward. No one ever hecame rich through organizing a chess tournament

Indeed, as an arbiter I am kinds. They give up all their very much poacher turned gameleisure hours, and more, in order keeper and as such am not activated by the almost saint-like principles of the true chess to enable players throughout tha country to get together and arhiter. However, I have to declare an interest when thanking, however belatedly, the chess organizer. belatedly, the chess organizer. To some extent it is thanking myself, and self-congratulation can ha just as dangerous as self-pity. In the one case you are riding for a fall and in tha other you prevent or impede your rise. Anyona who has competed in a strong tourna-ment is aware of this. Chess players should also he aware that they are unwice and imthat they are unwise and im-provident in their underestima-tion, or, still worse, in their ignoring the importance of the organizer. They are dispensable, the organizer is not.

the organizer is not. Let me look homeward and talk about the recent liferd Chess Congress. Here was a congress of soma 350 players organized by, at most, half a dozen people. This was done with quiet efficiency and a wholly admirable dedication of purpose. And yet we—I am now speaking as a chess-player— never gave them one word of thanks for their kind endeavours.

It was an interesting congress too. True, there was no Fischer there, not even a Karpov or a Tal. But what it lacked in quality it made up in colour and enthusiasm. Basman may have put his knights in impossible places hut it takes a Basman to achieve such astonishing and indeed touching manoenvres. The television interview is a second the last round and, so as to en-ahle you to understand his criticism, and also to compre-hend this business about knights yer no one has come up with an adequate alternative. Certainly, there has been a great advance since the days of the BBC's monopoly, when interviewers were respectful persons, neither asking provocative questions nor querying the answers however specious. Often we now go too far the other way so that the interview hecomes a war.

There are, broadly speaking three kinds of interview. The commonest form is the quizzing of a man in the news in order to elicit information, to establish his point of view or to seek out his intentions. At once this is unsatisfactory, hecause the victim's objective will either he to conceal the truth, his actual point of view and his intentions, or he will he attempting to make propaganda of one sort or mother. The second kind of interview is the interview with the expert, the specialist or the typical example. The only reason for these taking the form of an in-rarview at all is that television makers have judged, rightly or wrongly, that wo do not care to have information given to us in a baid and undunted fashion. The success of Sir Kenneth Clark, Alasjair Cooke and Jacob Bronowski, one might think, would deny this. On the other hand, when News at len de-cided to have two newscasters, the BBC assumed that this, rather than superior content; was the secret of IIN's popu-larity. They copied.

Anyhow experts are inter-viewed, with ludicrously boliow results. On the Book Pro-granute, Rohart Rohnson has two critics who discuss some books they have read-inst to make it even more computated they have taken to scanding up while they chat. "What is that book you have under your arm?" asks har Robins..... "Au, arm?e the science in more arm?" asks Mr Kobins.... "All , replies the critic in mock sur-prise, "it is a book on early methods of gravedigging in Upper Silesia". "Ob, 15 if, by any chance, hy Heimut Z. Lisen-scummel? "And so on.

There is obviously some sense Incre is opriously some sense in interviewing the typical ex-ample—an unmarried nother, is agoraphobic, or some other such fashionable figure—be cause they cannot be expected to some the sense the sense of the sense. to spout unprompted to rho camera. The dining room had tables, seating six, and, as I suon discovered, offered garganiuan meels at set hours, with mid-morning coffee and alternoon tea with home-made scones or cakes thrown in.

In the bar there was usually some sort of music in the evening. The staff drank there too, breating the guests with that easy friendliness which is one of the nicest features of Australia's egalitarian society. (It is the only country I know where even the taxi-krivers regard tips as an insultingly

All I had wanted to do-was flop on to the sand outside my bedroom and sleep for threa days, not talking to anyone. But the lure of that trip across the. water was irresistible. I could always flop tomorrow. But next morning. Lachlan made what I discovered was his ritual tour round, the hreakfast tables; announcing the treat on offer for that day and it was always irresistible.

"There's e hoat just leaving poises played under the bows; for that island over there, once the engines stopped and Royal Seaforth "; Lachlan said, we all kept very quiet because taking people over for a ... a bump-backed whale had surfaced just ahead.

All the islands in the group are national parks and nearly all of them are uninhabited. Somerimes we just went to one and picnicked and heachcomhed. We went to the reef and a new friend and I boiled the shells we had collected there in a billy-can over a fire

Drink

Summer is very much the time for drinking sparkling wines. The dry types ara able to wine is also a good choice for a picnic, though remember that the journey there will make the wine extra lively and he careful whan opening it. Until recently it will have been unlikely that anyone in the United Kingdom has been able to drink a carboosted wine, and even more unlikely that such a drink would have been found good. The sort of champagne" offered as a prize et continental fairs is often this kind of thing, with large, slow-rising bubbles that soon disappear and no quality of any kind. But Laytons, whose classic Burgundies and Bordeaux beve woo them an enthusiastic public, recently started selling a carbonated wine thet is e surprise and delight to tasters. This, Moselperlyein, is made from the Riesliog grape, which gives it a fine fruity smell, and it is only delicately fizzy, being carbonated to about 1.5 etmospheres. (Champagne and fully sparkling wines are 5.5 to 6 atmospheres.) Moselperheein leaves the pelete pleased eod refreshed. It is very dry, the bubbles are miniscule and rise fast, and the fizz remains as long as the screw top of the bottle is replaced. (Moselperlwein, bottled in Germany by Langguth, costs £12 a case from Laytons, 11 Gough Square, EC4.)

The rich relation of this wine is the fully sperkling Schloss Saarfels, which hes been popular for many years at Glyndehourne. This, elso made eo-tirely from the Riesling grape, is produced by the champagne method io the Saer, where the dryness and subtle bouquet of the fine wincs delight the knowing. Schloss Saarfels costs 52.02 a bottle from O. W. Loeb, 15 Jermyn Street, SW1, wbo also bave an exceptional range of the wines of Vouvray, all ideal for summer drinking.

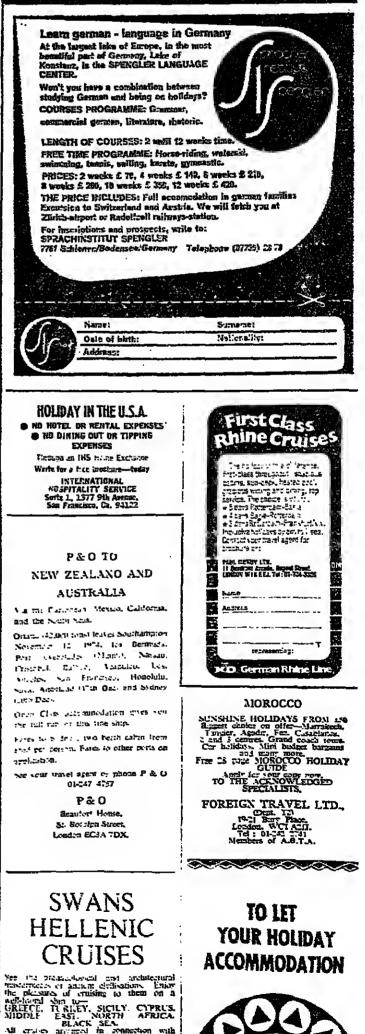

Asti Spumante is another sparkling wine that comes into its own in summer. Being made partner salads and foods served from tha Moscato grape it is with mayonnaise, which tends markedly fruity, though good to coat the palate. A sparking Asti should not be more than vaguely sweet, and it too will stand up to mayonnaise, dishes such as vitello tonnato and selections of cold meat that may include spiced sausages and raw ham. With fruit or ices and raw ham. With fruit or ices it is also very good. There are many types of Asti currently available, but a superior and dry example is that of Martini, from branches of Stowells & Threshers, fl.30. Martini also make a Gran Spumante, which, corrige from a different worth coming from a different north Italien vineyard, is interesting because it is made from the White Pinot, one of the Chamwhile rinot, one of the Cham-pagne grapes, and is produced according to the champagne method. This is a big dry wine, never evailable in quantity, hut Peter Dominic branches can usually order it (£1.40 a bottle) hottle).

Finally, an unusuel and very fine champagne, the Crémant hlanc de blancs 1969 of George Goulet, of Rheims. The first word of its name should not he word of its name should not be confused with the place Cra-mant; Crémant signifies "creaming" and in fact there are only 4 eimospheres behind the cork of this champagne, akhoogh, looking at il; you would assume it to be fully "mousseux". Mr Hochhauser and the Bolshoi Ballet

I do not wish at this point to go over yet again the case against Bolsboi Ballet being allowed to go ahead with their season at the Coliseum Theatra, under the auspices of the Sadlers Wells Trust; not even to empossize again the hypocrisy of those who implicitly condone in communist tyrannies what they actively work against in non-communist coes. But there is one sspect of the matter that has not so far haen discussed at all, and which seems to ma relevant. It concerns the posi-tion of Mr Victor Hochhauser, the impresario.

Mr Hochhauser has for many years had something approach-ing a monopoly in the presentation in this country of Soviet musicians, dancers and other artists. (The monopoly, incidentally, has been achieved not hy the uss of any special influence, but by shrewdness and bard work; Mr Hochheuser has simply ourdistanced his com-peritors.) Apart from those who believe that virtually any cul-rural contact with the Soviet Union is wrong, few people, until recently, beve criticized the visits of Soviet artists; lately, nowever, such criticism has mounted sharply.

This began, roughly speaking, at the time of the Soviet inva-sion of Czechoslovakia in 1968; by an ironic coincidence, the Red Army Choir was then in Britain, giving a series of concerts; these were brought to an abrupt end, I believe by the action of the British Government.

Since then the tide of protest has flowed ever mora strongly, as the Soviet Union's antisemitic persecution bas got worse. There bave been demonstrations (performances by the Georgian Stste Dancers were interrupted by protesters jumping oo to the stage) and in-creasingly sharp criticism, and this bas now come to a head around the present visit by the Bolshoi. It is felt, even by many not normally concerned with such matters, that the tour should never have been arranged while tha Panovs were undergoing such torment, and that it should bave been, and still should he (the first performance is set for next Wednesday), cancelled even though it was announced last night that the Panovs at least are finally being allowen to leave Russia. Which brings me to the position of Mr Hochhauser. Mr Hochhauser, woo is bimself born Jewisb and a former previously been instrumental in bringing Soviet hallet com-paoles to Britain, including tha Bolshoi. But that, of course, was hefore the present situation in the Soviet Union arose. In the present circumstances, it would he not, I am sure, in my opinion only-an eppalling thing for Mr Hochhauser, of all people, to be involved in the Boishoi visit, let alone for bim to stand to make money from it. When first asked what was hie connexion with the season, Mr Hochhauser absolutely and un-equivocally denied that be bas any connexion whatever with the Bolsbni's pressnt visit. He said that, io the circumstances, be would have nothing to do others, be thinks it is wrong end to reveal to him the idenfor the Bolshoi to come here at the present time ; that, right or wrong, he washed bis bands of his connexion with the Bolsboi some considerable time ago, and told the Soviet euthorities why he was doing so; that he has declined altogether, and from the start, to assist in any way whatever with the visit; and that he stands to make BO money et all from it. (To make his position absolutely clear, he explained that be had, at a very much earlier stage, effected some contacts between Moscow and London ; but that was all.) Nothing could have been plainer or more definite; end l most add that, when I tels-pboned Mr Hochhauser to ask pboned Mr Hochhauser to ask him what his position was, he responded amiably and cour-teously, and gave me the above answers without hesitation or evasiveness of any kind. Unfor-tunately (for Mr Hochbauser, thet is) there was hardly a syllable of truth in thet account. I had already been informed, by a source who could not have been mistaken, that Mr Hoch-hauser has been closely involved hauser has been closely involved with the present season of the Bolshoi Ballet, from the very start of the planning of the visit; that he had persuaded the Sodlers Wells Trust to put themselves forward as the sole presenters of the season, and m agree not to discloss his con-nexion, and that he did stand to make money out of it-cer-tainly, at least, if it is successful in commercial terms.

The charge implicit in the above is, obviously, a serious one. My source, therefore, gave me permission to confront Mr with it; that, in view of the treatment of the Panovs and Hochhauser with the charge, tity of the person making it. I (on Thursday evening) matters did so; and he responded as I had clearly moved far. bave stated above, insisting, I learced that a statement was calmly and firmly, that my to be put out, agreed between information was quite wrong, and that as he said he "utterly repudiated" it.

In the circumstances, it was obviously iocumbent on me to test the allegations by the only method that would ensure that the conflict of testimony could be settled one way or the other. I therefore got in touch with Lord Harewood, managing director of the Sadler's Wells Opera, and Mr Kenneib Robinwells Trust. I told them that Mr Hochhauser was denying all connexion with the Bolshoi's visit, and I invited them to visit, and I invited them to confirm that danial, or to refuse to confirm it. For what-ever nledge of non-disclosure had been made to Mr Hoch-hauser, it clearly could not oblige Mr Rohinson and Lord Harewood to tell deliberate lies, which is what a confirmation of his denial would be; and in any case they are men of the highest integrity, and would not tell lies anyway. On the other band, they were equally nuable to break their promise not to tell anyone of Mr Hochhauser's involveof Mr Hochhauser's involve-ment. In the circumstances, e refusal to comment was the only honourable course for them ; but it was also, obviously, tanta-mount to confirming my storysince there could be no reason for either of them to refuse to confirm Mr Hochbauser's denial if there was substance in it.

Mr Robinson duly refused to comment. I was unable to reach Lord Harewood for some hours after be received my specific question, and by the time I did

Mr Hochhauser and the Sadler's Wells Trust, either that same night (Thursday) or the following morning; it was clear that nobedy was pretending any longer thet Mr Hochhauser's claim of total con-involvement from start to finish was true. But I deduced, as time went by with oo text forthcoming, that it was proving difficult for Mr Hochhauser on the one hand, aod Sadler's Wells oo the other to agree on what sbould be said. to agree on what should be said. When, yesterday, this remained the position, I decided to go ahead and tell the whole story. Before doing so. I telephoned Mr Hochhauser again (as I had promised), and I received from him e letter, which I give hare in full:

him e feiter, which i give have in full: Dear Mr Levin. I wish to make sbsolntely clear my organization's role to con-necton with the forthcoming visit of the Bolshoi Ballet Company. In 1972, Lord Harewood spealed to us to obtain the Bolshoi Ballet for z season at the London Coli-seum, in view of the fact that Sadler's Wells Trust had summed substantial losses resulting from the cancellation by the Russians of the ballet season that year, after the expulsion of the 105 Soviet diplomats. Because of the Panov situation and the troubled ques-tion of Jewish immigration, we later expressed doubtr about that timing of such a visit and we signed the contract in 1973 only on the understanding that Sadler's Wells Trust present the season under their own name, to which they agreed. From informal discussions we had with the Russians, we were hopin full:

with the Russians, we were hop-ing quite sincerely that the sina-tion would improve. However, in the light of developments, we spoke many times with the Soviet authorities and with Lord Hare-wood and his chairman referrating our doubts about the visit and our doubts about the visit and warning them repeatedly of the strength of public feeling. Ou April 16th, before the season was officially aunounced, we had a meeting with the Soviet charge d'offaires expressing our serious misgivings about the visit unless the Panovs were allowed to emi-grate, but when it became clear that their situation would not chaoge, we wrote e letter on April 19th to Sadler'a Walls stating "we have now completely withdrawn from this particular presentation of the Bolshot Ballet". conducting a Government depariment snd, of course, the office of Prime Minister. The incombent minister can involve himself in every sort of decision, greet or small, taking pride in his unsparing application to duty : nothing is too trivial for him. Alternatively. be can delegate, leaving lesser Otherwise we hava no further connexions with this season: truly important. By adopting the first method he is liable to exhaust himself, as less important affairs (the bulk) consume his energies to the detriment of the more important. By prefer-

Tackling Everest in a tweed jacket

It is still faintly possible that 50 years ago todey two British climbers stood on the summit of Mourr Everest. Whether the last courageous attempt by George Mallory and Andrew Irvine really did succeed remains e mystery es eternal as the proverbial snows.

What little evidence there is What little evidence there is does suggest they died before they could reach the summit, but in that last dramatic glimpse of the two men by Odell they were "going strong" towards tha top, which was less than 1,000 feet above them. Conditions, according to one of Mallory's last notes, wera "perfect for the job". Neither man lacked determina-tion and there were no serious tion and there were no serious obstacles shead. Also, the pair used oxygen which Mallory accepted would be necessary to give the best chance of success. By 1924 Everest had become a kind of national status symbol which Britain seemed eager to acquire. Rongbuk glacier. But before he could try to climb Everest, Mallory had first to find the mountain. On the recounsissance in 1921, the mountaineers were moving into unexplored country. Hundreds of miles around the northern flanks of Everest lay unmapped and it was three months before the expedition bad found the. way through a barren region of blind alleys on to the North Col, at 23,000 feet, from which the north-east ridga swept towards the summit. Mexico's planned tourism expansion progresses rapidly.

Cancun, in the Mexican Caribbean, now ready. INTAPA, on the Pacific coast, develops swiftly.

In order to create new tourism sites the Mexican Government has formed the National Trust for Tourism Development: FONATUR. A Trust administered by Mexico's largest government owned finance company, Nacional Financiera. S.A.

CANCUN: THE MEXICAN CARIBBEAN

Cancún is a 14 mile long, practically uninhabited island, just off the Mexican Caribbean coast in the Territory of Quintana Roo in the Yucatan Peninsula. Now, a futuristic tourist centre is being developed there with careful planning of the social and economic aspects of the region for the benefit of local residents.

During the coming winter season. 500 rooms will be available; 1,500 by 1975. with subsequent growth.

Infrastructural works are on their way: an international jetport, all basic utilities (access roads, electricity, potable water, communications, etc.), low cost housing and adequate municipal services for the tourist area and Cancún City.

Besides having outstanding beaches and beantiful weather, Cancun offers an unmatched experience the 1,000 year old Mavan Civilization.

IXTAPA: THE NEW PACIFIC Ixtapa is a 16 mile long golden strip of virgin beach along the Mexican Pacific in the State of Guerrero. Palm-fringed beaches, rich flora and fauna set beside the warm Pacific waters.

Ixtapa, just north of Zihuatanejo and about 150 miles north-west of Acapulco, will start operations in 1975. It will be a self-contained, integrally-developed resort community with luxurious hotels, condominiums, homes, golf courses, marinas, etc.

Facilities to adequately house a permanent population in Zihuatanejo City are being carried ont.

The ecological balance of both Cancun and Ixtapa will be maintained throughout their growth.

MEXICO ON THE MARCH

When the present Administration took office in 1970, headed by President Luis Echeverria, statistics showed that in the preceding ten years mexico's participation in world trade had fallen to a new low. Immediate officients were made to reverse this trend, and by Presidential Decree the following remarkable measures were our officer.

- by Presidential Decree the following remarkable measures were put into effect:
 The establishment of IMCE, the Mexican Institute for Foreign Trade, to aid manufacturers to increase production and widen their markets on a global basis. Here is one evidence of IMCE's success: in the first 32 wonths of President Echeverria's Administration exports increased by 36.1°, over the previous same number of months. Export rolume last year alone was 30.649.9 million besos M'N.
 The creation in 1971 of CEDI (Certificates of rax remittance for export sales). As of this year close to 100 million dollars have been returned to Mexican exporters as an incentive for continued export increases.

Trade Missions: DiaCe, from a modest beginning of six trade missions in 1971, has to this date sent out a total of 23 such commercial groups, along with 12 "Special Brighdes" to every confinent on the globe. 4. Seminars on "Ooling Business in Mexico" have been given in various cities of Eogland, France, Germany, Italy, U.S.A., Belgium and here in Mexico. 5. Trade Fairs: In this year alone IMCE is soonsoring plus two in Japan and China. It is noteworthy that, in addition to the substantial increases in manufactured exports, Mexico's internal market has, io this same three year period, increased in volume by 135.9 per cent. This growing national market presents added incentive to the programme, "IN MEXICO, THE BEST INVESTMENT".

Here is a Government policythe increase in pensions-which is of the very essence of the Government's part of the bargain. In figured prominently in the Gov ernment's election campaign and has been widely endorsed, indeed demanded, by the leaders of the trade union movement.

Here is a group of workers who are not felt-heroes like the miners. Nor are they engaged in a vital industry or the benefi-ciaries of a sudden windfall enhancement of their "economic value like the miners. They are not even, like the nurses, doing the kind of work which excites the admiration and sympathy of the population at large.

To be sure they are low paid by today's standards. - But, if anyone has to be low paid in the scale of society's intuitive scale of social merit; it would probably be clerks in the Civil Service. This is not to deny the intrinsic value of the work they do or the dedication which individual clerks may bring to their work. Nor is it to deny that paying the pension increases on time will unundoubtedly impose a heavy, though temporary, load on these workers, who doubtless feel that they are already sorely tried.

But it remains a solemn indictment of the social contract that a Government in the first full flush of delivering its side of the social contract in a veritable flood of fiscal and legislative measures should be unable to persuade such an inherently weak group of its own servants to make the extra effort required to enable such an essential feature of the social contract to be honoured on time. If these workers will defy the spirit of the social contract, who will not?

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Price sisters' demands

From Mr R. Burriss

Sir, Am I the only Catholic to be deeply scandalized by the reaction of Cardinal Conway to Mr Jenkins's statement explaining why he is . un able to give in to the Price sisters able to give in to the Price sisters' demands? While (of course) condemning JRA activities, and even those of the London bombers, Cardinal Con:way refuses to face the fact that these young women and the Provisional "IRA" (which is about as truly Irish and Republican as the extreme Unionists are "loyalist") have very delibertable and meticulously set deliberately and meticulously set about creating a situation in which the Homa Secretary would have to refuse the "reasonabla request:" of which Cardinal Conway speaks in his statement. If the sisters had wanted nothing more than transferral, to a Northern Irish prison, who ser iously doubts that a peaceful campaign of letter writing, persuasion, dramon-strating and pleading would, within six months or a year, have haid its dasired effect, unless there is some truly overriding reason for refusal to transfer >

But no, within two minutes; of sentence heing announced the hunger strike was proclaimed: since then the newspapers have printed the letters of these women and iletailed the hardships of their relatives who have to travel long distances to visit (although they need undergo no financial hardship). There has been no parallel reporting of the grief of the relatives and friends of the murdered man or of the many injured. In addition to the most instelligent In addition to the most intelligent manipulation of press and television, aimed at presenting the sisters as martyrs, victims of an anthioritarian dictator, the Provisionals have issued threats of "vengeance" and "retri-hution", should the sister's succeed in dying, despite medical extension. This is the crucial difference be-tween the protest of the sisters and threat of pressure of the sisters and those of previous hunger strikers making "reasonable demanda" and it is a difference Cardinal Conway it is a difference Cardinal Conway has chosen to ignore. Of course what they want "seems so reasonable". But it is wrong to separate demand from the method chosen to demand it: blackmail and threas; of personal violence on a member of a govern-ment chosen by domocratic means ment chosen by democratic means. If the sisters are moved the IRA wins. If they die in England the IRA also wins, unless church leaders and others with influence on Catholic opinion firmly conde in both the hunger strike and the t breat of future catascrophic conserguences" behind it. hind it. To do this should not necessarily imply indifference to the sisters' suf-fering or conviction. But the choice has to be made without any illusion that It is possible to both condemn Mr Jenkins and disapprove of the hombings. The Provisional IRA have created this stark choice, and Car-ding! Conway has fallen into their dinal Conway has fallen into their trap by giving some skight legitimacy, bowever qualified, bowever uninten-tioned, to the violeort demonstration of their displeasure, should their greatest bope be realized. Meanwhile, in London Cardinal Heepan is silent, Pirbaps be thinks that unlike strikter and second dinal Conway has fallen into their

that, unlike strikes and sexual morality, this matter' is not one for the church? To confine it to the "theological" I would be grateful for clarification of one point taught that the sacrament of Confes-sion was invalid, that absolution for sin could not he granted, unless the sinner was truly repentant, and that one could not be repentant in advance for sins one intended to commit later; further, that one abould not receive Holy Communion without repentance and desire to avoid sin in the future. Is suicide no longer a sin? Yours, etc., RHYS BURRISS. Worcester Colleges Oxford June 3.

Saving lives is better than saving faces. If their plea for their move on bumane grounds to Northern Ireland is not a subterfuge for a planned escape, the only point of difference between them and the Home Secretary seems to be the naming of a definite date by which their health and security conditions might be expected to make the move possible. Might not the naming of a target date afford a basis for agree-ment which seems to be prevented by a cruel splitting of hairs.

To those respecting the human spirit self-destruction must be as wroog as thereby to endanger the lives of others. Surely these considerations with a target date might be put to the sisters before it is toe late

Yours faithfully, MOYNE, House of Lords. June 6.

From Dom Christopher Jenkins Sir, Mr Ian McKiturick (Juna 5) asks whether Cardinal Conway "speaks whether Cardinal Conway " speaks for himself alone, or for the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Ireland, or for tha Church of Rome itself ".

tha Church of Rome itaelf.". Perbaps the nearest account of Roman Catholic moral theology in English is Moral and Pastoral Theo-logu by Heory Davis, SJ (first pub-lished 1935, 4th edition 1943). Fr Davis opens his discussion of Suicide by saying, "It is never cermitted to kill conself intentionally". Then, speaking of hunger strikers, ha goes on, "If the prisoner intend to starve till death, and intend also that his death shall be the means of bring-in; deserved odinm upon his enemies ... this, we think is morally wrong, even when imprisonment is unjust. If it is thought that there is a good chance of being freed from prison before death ensues, to refuse all food would be justifiable when the imprisonment is unjust and when the good to be attained is commen-surate with the bodily harm, short of death, that is permitted ". (My italics.)

As I understand it, the hunger strikars are not striking in order to pressure the authorities into releasing them, hut in order to pressure the authorities into chenging their prison status, their prison condi-tions, or their place of imprisonment. The "good to be attained" is there-fore less than freedom itself, and so not commensurate with the bodily harm self-inflicted.

As I understand it, the hunger strikers do not intend to stop short of death, bot do intend to kill them-selves. Gaughan's father says that selves. Gaughan's father savs that his last words ware, "I am willing to die for the cause". His mother savs than on ber last visit to him he told her, "I am ready for death". The father of the Price sisters says, "They know what they are doing.... They bave prepared themselves for the worst". Stagg's sister says, "I think be will die. He bas no other choice". And so it seems clear to me that the

And so it seems clear to me that the hunger strikers, whatever their sub-jective intentions and obvious good faith, are, on Catholic principles, engaged in a gravely sinful course of action. Accordingly, I do not see bow any Roman Catholic priest can give Holy Communion or Absolution or Christian burial to any of the

While not seeking to dstract cent. The Bolshoi dancers

From Mr Richard Collins From Mr Richard Collins Sir, Everyone must surely share the concern felt about the Panova by Dame Peggy Ashcroft and others in their letter (June 7). But I suggest that any method that expresses this concern by conveying it primarily to the memhers of the Bolshoi Ballet would be unlikely to achieve any practical effect. practical effect.

Sir, Mr Peter Hain states in bis letter (The Times, May 30) that " the per-secution which is an inevitable result of any opposition in the Soviet Union" is not "racialist tyranuy" because "it is applied impartially to all regardless of race ". True, hut surely a state which ill-treats all of ts population is practis tyranny than a state which ill-treats only one racial group among its population. Article 13 (2) of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights provides: "Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own . . . ' (italics added). The Soviet Union has, with rare exceptions, denied this right, not only to Soviet Jews but to all Soviet citizens; any Soviet cirizen who expresses a wish to emigrate for eny reason is liable to be treated as disloyal and to be subjected to various kinds of sunjected to various kinds of unpleasantness by the KGB. Laying a wreath From the Chilean Ambassado

Sir, With reference to the letter from Mr W. R. J. Pullen published today (June 6), I would like to emphasize, once again, what I have already stated after a letter from the Canons of Westminster : 1. In a letter dated. February 1 last, addressed to the Head of the Chilean Naval Mission, the Archdescon of the Abbey confirmed that it would be in order for the tradi-tional ceremony at Lord Cochrane's tomh to take place on May 21, in the same way as on previous occasions. 2. Later, in a letter dated February 14, the Very Rev Eric Abbot, Dean of Westminster Abbey, advised the Head of the Chilean Naval Mission that "The proposed wreath laying on the grave of Admiral Lord Cochrane," could not take effect, for which no reason was given. 3: As a result of informal inquiries carried out later, the undersigned was advised that the Abbey would accept that only four official Chilean representatives could be present to lay the wreath and that this had to done privately and without publicity.

As is natural, the undersigned did not accept the alternative pro-posal as this would not have been within the spirit of the traditional ceremony when the Chilean Govern-ment and the Chilean Navy have, year after year, in an official and public ceremony, paid bonour to the illustrious Brinsh mariner who fought for the independence of our country and contributed so greatly to the perfection of our Navy. Yours sincerely.

Taxing the farmer

From Mr G. B. Heywood Sir, The view seems to prevail in some quarters that it does not matter if the withdrawal of capital from agriculture through beavy taxation forces private landlords and farmers out of business because the public through institutional investors, will be able to buy land and make up the industry's capital loss. Colonel George Judd's letter in your issue of June 4 makes clear that this is not the case. Institutional investors to agriculture are primarily interested in either a high return or long-term capital appreciation. Agriculture at present provides neither. A government committed to agricultural expaosion-as the Labour Government says it is ought oot to threaten additional taxation of the industry's functional capital. The British farmer already hears capital taxation at a far higher rate than his European counterpart. Yours faithfully.

From Lord Moyne

Sir, I recall that when my grandfather's Vermeer was stolen from Kenwood and threatened with destruction, a plea crane from the sisters that it should not be destroyed. When it was recovered soon after tha Beits collection I, thought of writing to you, Sir, to suggest that then would have been the misment, while duress from outside had for the time being ceased, for the Home Secretary to consider the purely humanitarian and security aspects of moving the sisters from England to Ireland. His statement has made clear that he has done exactly that; but outside pressures continue to mount with which it becoraes difficult for the sisters not to keep in agonizing step. Yet since they have shown a respect for the buman spirit in wishing to save the Verneeer they cannot be devoid of some feeling for bumanity in spite of the crime for which they are imprisoned.

minister ever to take a look at the situation for himself, Mr Graham Page, admitted in the Commons on From Sir Bernard Braine, Conserva tiva MP for Essex, South East

Sir, Mr M. N. Wella (June 7) com pletely misses the point in his attack on me for rampaigning against two oil refineries heing added to existing high fire risk installationa on Canvey Island. Moreover he leaves certain uncomfortabla facts out of account. He does not reveal that the elected local authorities, and also the Essex County Council as planning authority, have consistently opposed the introduction of these refineries, nor does be mention the 30,000 people who will have to live alongside them. The point Mr Wells misses is that while particular high risk installations, including bis own, may be well conducted and well protected against fire, every additional risk that is added compounds the rest. This is not a new ergument sparked off by the Flixborough tragedy. For years I have been trying to persuade governments to consider the totality of the effect on the Thames-side communities of the industrial planning decisions they were taking. In my npinion it was necessary for someone in high authority to take an overall view of what was happening to our environment. I said in Parliament in November, 1970, that " the Aberfan disaster crept upon us largely unawares because no one ever thought that it was his responsibility to calculate the risks being taken "

Y ct so far successive governments have refused an inquiry on the lines I bave sought. Significantly the only hunger strikers. I deplore the failure of the Roman Catholic hierarci in Ireland and in England to explain the intrinsic immorality of what these brave but muddled and misguided young people are doing to themselves.

I used to think Orwell was wrong about Christianity: that Roman Catholics, in the last resort, would act on Catholic, rather than national-ist principles. Above all, I used to think, Roman Catholic priests would act on Catholic, rather than national-ist principles. I now know better. I am totally disillusioned with the bebaviour of ao many of my brother priests of Irish nationality or descent. I deplore the damage being done to our Church, but its being made to eppear more and more, in the eyes of iotelligant outsiders, as a denomination for foreign national ists who do not always tell tha truth. We Roman Catholic priests in England have kept silent too long-nut of diffidence, out of reluctance to meddle in politics, out of embarrassment, out of muddled group loyalty. It is time we spoke. Yours faithfully, C. JENKINS, Belmont Abbey, Hereford. June 6.

Historic gardens

From Mrs Mavis Batey Sir, In his letter of June 1 Mr John Harris forcibly draws attention to the difficulties that face owners of conntry houses and warns us of the tragic loss to the nation if they are thoughtlessly allowed to vanish from the English scene.

The gardens and parks in which these country houses are set are especially vulnerable and even a few years of neglect may mean that they are lost for all time. These historic gardens and parks are as much part gardens and parss are as much part of our cultural beritage as art and architecture and embody the spirit of their age. By linking the house in the countryside the designed garden or park makes e vital contribo-tion to what is universally admired as the ordered heanty of the English rural landscape.

Everything possible must be done to help those who hold these historic gardens and parks in trust so that we can ensure that the cherished tradition of the English Garden may survive for the enjoyment and inspiration of future generations. Yours faithfully.

'Celebrated Oxford crown' is sold for £20,000

IS SURY IUI ZZU By Geraldine Norman Sale Room Cornespondent One of the half-dozen surriving specimens of dize "celebrated Oxford crown" of 1644 by Thomas Rawlins was sold at Glendining's yesterday for £20,000 (Spink). It is easily the most famous of the coins minted byl Charles I at Oxford, when he set up his bead-quarters there in the Civil War. Thomas Rawlins was a renowned engraver of the time and his design incorporates an equestrian figure of the king over a view of the city of Oxford. The elaborate design appears not to have, got into gen-eral production. The Glendining's sale was deroted to a group of English and Scottish coins which had been bought at the sales cif the famous R. C. Lockett collection in the 1950s. They were sent for sale by the Clonterbrook Trust. In 1956 the "celebrated Oxford crowa" had cost only £755.

The mystery of the Holy Trinity beople thought that the doctrine of the Trinity was an exercise in "celestial mathematics", with three somebow equalling one, whereas it should be understood as an insight into the mystery of things. For those who heard him, this incidental comment was a liberation from the fear that talk about " the holy and undivided Trinity" was absard nonsense. But can we still make sense of the ancient doctrine ? Certainly for many today, the

Certainly for many today, the traditional teaching about God as triume does seem absurd. And it is absurd if we assume it to be about "celestial mathematics". But if it "celestial mathematics". But if it provides an insight into how things go, if it is an attempt to express conceptually the deepest meaning of Christian experience. and if it makes possible a more profound understanding of God's, ways with his world and with men, it may very well turn out to be a summary starement of "the Catholic faith: that we worship one God in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity".

Humility, the recognition that we are speaking of the great mystery of the divine reality, and above all the understanding that we are to worship God, not define him, are necessary for all of us. At the same time, there is wisdom in St Angestine's saying that we do better to speak thus baltingly and humbly about God, than to say pothing at all. nothing at all.

nothing at all. Some of us, anyway, are confi-dent that there is genuine insight, as Webb put it, in this ancient doctrine; we are not prepared to jettison it because it is difficult or very hard to inderstand. After all, the Athanasian Creed itself says that " the Unity in Thisity, and the Trinity in Unity is to be worshipped". So the doctrine, in giving us deep insight, also gives us a motive for adoring the mys-nery which we name God. How them may we put it? them tho psychological advantage for the rest of the series. The Lions, who have shattered a host of South African rugby records after only seven games of their 22 fixture tour, want to take the most coveted record of all-winning a series against South Africa away from home. No British squad has managed to do this since 1896, but the touring team have come to South Africa with a proud international record. In 1971 they beat the powerful New Zealand team in a series in New Zealand team in a series of the world championship. South Africa are also playing for more then just the series, for overall defeat against the Lions could increase South Africa's isola-tion from world rugby. The British team had to with-stand strong pressure before tour-ing South Africa, and if South Africa lose the series other inter-national sides might decide that political coosiderations outweigh the challange of coming to the repoblic. It is oot easy to assess the chances seconding it. The meeting, on an amendment from Mr Goldstone, overruled the proposal by Liverpool and Ipswich that the League accept the full three-year contract as negotiated by the management committee and their adviser, Harold Davison. Mr Goldstone said afterwards : "The television companies have made it abundantly clear that they can pay vast sums for the World Cup, and compete with each other at the same time. The fact that the two companies hare combined on this issue to get football on the cheap from us is wrong. We have been the ones painted hlack hut I think we have come our of this whiter than white."

pointical coosinerations ontweigh the challange of coming to the repoblic. It is oot easy to assess the chances of the two teams for the first inter-national because they have the same hasic strength at forward and both have rather untested, if not inexperienced backlines. With an average weight of 217 pounds, the Lions pack is one of the heaviest units to go into an international in South Africa. But the exclusion of the long-striding number leight, Ripley, and the speedy Neary, at flank, will cer-tainly slow the visitors down in their chase after the loose hall. Conversely, the inclusion of the lock. Uttley, at wing forward and the hardworking Davies, at number eight, adds great strength and unity to the Lions forwards. It is in the loose nhases that South Africa are expected to have a definite advatage. The flanker Ellis, with 31 international caps, is a master in this department, and the support of the rull number attendance. Yeovil gained 14 votes, Wigan 10. Cheimsford City eight, Telford United une. Nuneaton Borough one and Cambridge City nil. Mr Goldstnor told the meetiog that he hoped all the clubs would abide by the decision and not negotiate separately. But his expecta-tions were dashed when the new president of the League, Lord West-wood, admitted that his club, Newcastle United, would seriously think of approaching the television com-panies. matches. Bedford would be obliged if no one, particularly the excitable press, takes this too seriously, as it is supposed to be a gentle vez-ture into competition after about six weeks of training at 50 miles a week, compared with his old average of more than 100. Even his club are diffident about agree-ing that Bedford may be in their team tomorrow, though they need him for valuable pokets in order to qualify for the next round ahead of either Enfield or Polytechnic Harriers. be in for the first game ". The chances of the relevision companies agreeing to the increased demands are remote. Their offer for one year was a 15 per cent increase un last season's contract, from around £250,000 to about £310,000. That means Mr Gold-stone and his supporters want at least another £400,000. The clubs were asked to vote on one of four proposals—a one-year contract, a two-year contract, a three-year con-tract or free negotiation by clubs. They ignored them all and followed the proposal of the Cardiff chair-man. This domestic competitive occa-sion for Bedford will be followed sion for Bedford will be followed by an appearance over a mile et Gypsy's Green five laps to a mile track at South Shields on June 30. Bedford now intends to com-pete in the AAA championships at Crystal Palace on July 12 and 13, and that could mean at least an extra 5,000 live spectators and per-haps acother 250,000 watching television. Foster believes that Bedford would not anter the meet-ing without serious intentions.

Bedford would not anter the meet-ing without serious intentions. The most warming aspect of the news of Bedford's return to Bri-tish athietics, so far as I am con-cerned, is that a sometimes confused, often misunderstood young man has apparently been able to rediscover, in spite of the frustratiog elusiveness of those gold medals, the sheer pleasure of running.

They are Michael Collins, of Svrrey, aged 22, former British julior champion, and Kate Latham, of California, aged 21. Collins had a remarkahle day, heating three areded players. First of all Collins disposed of the third seed, Ray Keidle, who was doubtless the less pleased of the two when their match was put on a loose-top court in an offort to quicken the progress of a tourna-ment disrupted by rain. Joining the rush to set a quick time whilo the track remained dry, Lauda managed a lap in 1min 26.946sec with his Ferrari, which is just four-fifths of a second outside the lap record for tha two miles and a half Scandinavian Raceway, despite the inclusion of the new chicane at the end of the main straight. Peterson was just under way the match was going. By this time Collins was playing as if all things were possible and he set about the second seed, Robert Gilthnan, with such skill and authority that it seemed Gilt-nan might go down in straight sets. For Scheckter it was a case of mastering the circuit, which he had never seen hefore, in the minimum possible time, but once again he proved himself a quick learner to put his Elf-Tyrrell 007 among the froot runners. The two Texaco-Mariboro team drivers, Fittipaldi and Denis Hulme, had their McLaren M23s working well from the start, clearly henefitting from some intensive testing they carried out here a week or two ago. They are lying fourth and sixth in the list of qualifiers, split by Jean-Pierre Jarler, whose performance in the UOP Shadow has given his team further en-couragement after their third place at Monaco. After his hest time in the dry, Jarler went on to record a British left-hander, Mark Fairen, who began the match well but later lost much of his assurance aod accuracy. Lambourn is looking forward to a second triumph

By Michael Phillips Racing Correspondent

Will the Oaks oriug success to the Queen for the second bins in a classic this season or will it result in another triumph for the Berk-shire village of Lambourn, already basking in the glory of Soow Knight's victory in the Derby this week ? These seem to be the two most pertinent questions which should he answered at Epsom today.

The Queen's hopes, and those of countless others, are pinned on Escorial, who will be ridden hy Lester Piggott. The inhabitants of Lambourn will be rooting for either Polygamy, the favourite, or Dibi-daie, always assuming that Dihidale runs. Polygamy has been my idea of the winner of this particular classic since I watched her win the 1.000 Guioeas trial stakes at Ascot on April 6. I, wrote soon after-wards that no matter what she accomplished at Newmarket on 1.000 Guineas day, she looked to have an outstanding chance of Win-ming the Oais, and I have no reas m to after that view. countless others, are pinned on

Her case was strengthened when she failed by only the width of a cigarctize to force a dead heat with Highclere in the 1,000 Guineus. Polygamy might well be described as an equine version of a whippet, wiry in appearance hut as tough as teak within. She may he over-shadowed in the gaddock hefore-hand, but that is nor where the battle is woo. It will be in the race that her great qualities should emerge, and f hope to see her blood her young rider, Pat Eddery, with his first victory in a classic. f have no gualas about Polygamy Her case was strengthened when Escorial is cartainly a live spark. But Piggott caimed her down the mument that he sat on her in the parade ring and together they won the Musidora States. It was an impressive performance hut her opposition was not strong and I am inclined to doubt whether Piggott will be able to ride her in the same confident rein this time. fan Baiding, Escorial's trainer, Northern Gem also failed to distiaguish herself in the 1.000 Guineas hut ran a genuine race in the equivalent frish classic, goiog under by only one length and a half to

Two norses seem to dominate the field hat unlike the English race on Wednesday there are plenty of horses whose presence is justified by recent form and none whose chances can he dismissed. The two principal candidates are Marcel Eoussac's Dankaro, who has won itis three races this season, and Nelson Bucker Hunt's Mississipiao, who has been beaten half a length in both of his ontines. Although Dankaro has not won by more than three-quarters of a length in any of these races be has always had something to spare. He has already earned approximately f150,000 this year and if successful tomorrow would edd at least another £1,000, including the hreeder's prize and the special bonus paid to the owners of French-bred horses. He would also be his owner's twelfth sinner of the race which he first won with Ramus in 1922.

For a life office, it is that annual return on the assets as a whole which is really import-any. In practice, the rise in interest rates which accompanied the sharp drop in the value of so many investments, for many offices, has increased both the amount earned on funds last year and also the potential carnings for tha fature.

For many offices, the contri-bution to surplus which bas arisen in this way has mora than offset the reduction in tha mount by which capital has heen written up, and so it bas bean possible to increase bonus rates

Cloerly, therefore, terminal bonuses could be expected to be gnite volatile, dependent on investment conditions. Quite rightly, lifa offices stressed that they must be looked upon in a completely different light from reversionary bonuses. But terminal bonuses have brought their problems. In the first place, life offices and brokers have had to consider bow to deal with them when esti-mating maturity values to potential policyholders.

In some cases, the estimated maturity value has been basad simply on the assumption that current rates of reversionary bonus will be maintained, with a mention being made that a terminal bonus will be payable. Usually there is a note that if bappened at the time of the acci-dent, this should facilitate the settlement of the claims, But a motorist is not obliged to sign one of these forms, even though the other motorist may do so-and even if the police make it clear that they expect one to sign. In fact, there is unlikely to be much to be lost by complet-ing one of the agreed statements since it is intended as no more than a facility for insurers, and has no legal effect. And British insurers are happy that, by com-pleting one of these forms, one is not admitting liability, so far as they are concerned.

In Holland, the er sn that, with any percentage is around 40 per claim discount will cent; it is a modest 10 per cent, or so, in Germany. Motorists on the continent are being issued with forms so that they can be used straight away in the event of an accident. And, sborn. On the left and right band sides of the form, details bave to be given of the two vehicles involved in the accident, and down the centre there are typical circumstances—such as leaving or emering a parking place (at the roadside), changing lanes, overtaking, struck in the rear while going in the same direction and in the same lane, and so on. and so on.

A cross can be put in the rele-vant boxes for each car. This is intended to amplify the diagram, since motorists ara not generally Certainly, where this scheme scores is that the single stare-ment of the "facts" of an acci-dent has to be signed by both the motorists involved in the accident. But the form does bave certain limitations. Basically, it is designed only for a two-car accident unfortunately, it is accidents where more cars are involved which are particularly difficult from the claims point of view.

This means that, where there is, say, a "concertina" collision, the whole situation cannot be explained on a single form. Instead, a different form must be used for each pair of vehicles involved.

The form is likely to be amended and improved in the future and, perhaps, one day. British insurers will decide to copy the idea. After all he cause of rising premiums, there is a steady trend away from full comprehensive cover to. say, third party, fire and theft insurance.

Anything which can make life easier for a motorist when deal ing with insurers is to be welcomed-evan if it does involve a certain amount of work (aod perbaps, some argument) imme-diately after an accident.

technical recovery from recent lows. In the final stages there was a fresh sharp rise to the july position which was automatically reflected in adjacent months. Speculative shortcovering, chart hurna, and stop loss orders provided sob-stantial sopport to the face of re-treating sellers. Dealers said the sudden advance reflected similar strength in New York plos private reports of port congestion in Brzzii. Prices tended to fall from the highs at the final call oo jobber profit-taking but still closed strong at 565.50 (cearby July) to 59.50 higher.
